The Pardesi range of Blue Black slates have a medium riven texture. The slate is produced to our specification in the North West of the Leon Province of Spain.

The Pardesi range offers contractors, specifiers and developers an economic slate with quality product selection. The slate may contain visible pyrites, which through our years of experience with the quarry, will not oxidise.

The quarry, they have introduced modern quarrying techniques to maximise production, whilst still staying true to the traditional hand crafted skills of the past, which maintain the natural essence of a slated roof.
